A Leader in Every Locker

Winning Through Teamwork Intelligence

Dr. Cory Dobbs

"The research and practice behind A Leader in Every Locker verifies the assumption that every student is able to learn a leadership framework, use leadership tools, engage in leadership processes, and develop a capacity for leading.

What Game Are You Playing?

You've likely played tic-tac-toe, checkers, and tried your hand (really your mind) at chess. All three games have a similar structure—the game board. Movements and counter-movements make up the action of the game. But what changes are the movements of the game pieces, the strategy, the situations, the thinking, and of course the degree of difficulty of play.

Research reveals most scholastic athletic programs teach leadership and team building at very low level of rigor. That is, most student-athletes are mired in a learning process of mediocre value. You can continue to follow the easy path—playing tic-tac-toe or checkers. But if you truly want to deliver a transformational experience you need A Leader in Every Locker.

PRAISE FOR A LEADER IN EVERY LOCKER

"Not only are Cory Dobbs' ideas progressive, but they are practical as well."

–Dr. Brian Smith, Director Jerry Colangelo School of Sports Business, Grand Canyon University

"In this book Dr. Cory Dobbs makes the case to take a new approach to leadership by throwing out the old model of the "team captain" and replacing it with each player having a role in team leadership. I am convinced this model will not only have a dramatic affect on how a team will thrive, it will also affect how team members will learn to lead in the real world." -Peggy Seegers-Braun, CMAA, Athletic Director

"I must admit my professional bias towards the model of "A Leader in Every Locker" that Dr. Dobbs creates in this, his latest book. I too am a proponent of a shared leadership model and believe that leadership is not a gift reserved for a small minority, but that it can be learned and enhanced in most people. It is our responsibility as coaches, educators, and leaders to raise up a future generation of leaders. After all, isn't helping others in their leadership journey the ultimate testament to our own leadership capacity? With this book Dr. Dobbs gives a clear and convincing argument to the importance and need to adopt this 21st century model and a path as to how to transform your leadership environment from hit-or-miss to intentional."

-Juan Pablo Favero, Head Coach Women's Soccer, Oakland University

"All student-athletes and coaches have the ability to be leaders, but learning how to develop and use that leadership ability is the key to being successful. Here's a great tool."

-Neal Meyer, Senior Director Basketball Operations, NBA Europe
